Note: Regulation 5.7.11.8 requires the count to be conducted using “the optional preferential method of counting.” However, there is more than one optional preferential method of counting, and the regulations do not provide guidance on which is to be used. We have conducted the count using optional preferential proportional counting, in line with common practice across Australian university student organisations. This method, as well as being widely considered the most democratic is also more likely to produce outcomes that maximise the diversity of multi-member bodies, as the regulations appear to be written to ensure in other ways.
